Tom DeMark Indicators

Trevor Neil has been a trader for over 30 years and technical analyst for more than 25. He is a past board member of the STA and runs BETA Group, which gives market timing skill seminars to institutions internationally. BETA Group has developed an eLearning programme to prepare candidates for the IFTA Level I exam. He is a Contributing Editor to The Technical Analyst Magazine, an active trader and consultant to a leading UK hedge fund. He is considered an expert in the work of Tom DeMark. For four years he was a technical analysis Specialist at Bloomberg. He was involved in the development of the TD studies on their platform and did much to promote Tom's work globally.

This talk will look at DeMark's Oscillators – in particular the TD Demarker and Range Expansion Index. Tom is best known for his market exhaustion techniques, TD Sequential and TD Combo, but much of his other work is underappreciated. This talk will look at these excellent and innovative technical indicators and especially at how to use them in practice.
