Speaker: Malcolm Pryor, MSTA
Author and Private Trader

Profiting from technical analysis as a private trader

Malcolm Pryor has been trading more or less full time for his own account since early 2002. He has a library of over 300 books on technical analysis and trading. He uses technical analysis to trade derivatives including spread bets. He has published three books and a DVD and has a website focused on spread betting.

In his talk Malcolm will discuss some of the technical analysis concepts which have been profitable for him, some of the ones which haven't (and why that is), which ones seem to have captured the imagination of the general public, and some of the things which make a real difference such as position sizing and belief systems.
