Trading the DeMark Levels

After some work experience while completing his MBA, Guido worked at Delta Forex in Italy, covering Elliott Wave on FX. He then tried, with mixed success, the life of the independent analyst and finally joined Bloomberg 10 years ago. Most of this time has been spent dealing with Technical Analysis in some form, and since the beginning of 2005 he has been in charge of TA for Europe, Middle East and Africa.

Guido reckons to meet around 20-25 people interested in TA every week. Most of these meetings end up covering DeMark, and very often with the same questions. The main interest is how to trade the signals and which signals should be more closely observed than others. The presentation will show how within TD Sequential and TD Combo there is more information than at first meets the eye. Delayed perfections, compressed setups, disqualified breakouts, clustering of signals and retracements will be covered, as well as suggestions on how to include in the analysis TD Differential and TD Camo. There have been other presentations on the DeMark indicators, but he hopes to present some new suggestions on how to use these amazing tools.
